Who Topped the List as MCAC's Top Supporters in 2022?

Each year MCAC compiles a list of the companies whose contributions rise to the top when evaluating the various ways (exclusive of membership dues) one can support the association including Affinity programs, the Mission Partner program, event sponsorships and advertising.

For the fourth year in a row, Saint Moore Insurance Agency tops the MCAC Top Supporters list thanks to the insurance program fees they so generously share with MCAC. Our Mission Partners ORCO Block & Hardscape and PJ's Rebar & Stud Rails round out the Top 3. Please give it up for ALL of the companies shown below and remember to support the businesses that support your association with your purchasing power.

You can also see the full lineup of MCAC Top Sponsors 2022 on the MCAC home page here.

MCAC is committed to be an advocate, information center, and connection point for the masonry industry. The funds provided by our supporters in conjunction with the most amazing loyal members allow us to do what we do.

These regulations took effect on February 3, 2023 and will remain in effect for two years after the effective date (until February 3, 2025), except for the recordkeeping subsections that will remain in effect for three years.

Cal/OSHA and State Fund offer free COVID Prevention Plan (CPP) fillable templates which have been updated as of February 2023 and reflect the December 2022 changes to the COVID non-emergency regulations. ICPI-NCMA announced during their February 2023 Annual Meeting in Columbus, OH that they will now operate as one entity after co-founding the Concrete Masonry & Hardscapes Association (CMHA). On paper, the unification of the Interlocking Concrete Pavement Institute and the National Concrete Masonry Association officially took effect July 1, 2022. As 2023 unfolds, CMHA will look to enhance its new identity while maintaining its mission to be the go-to resource for education, networking and advocacy, aimed at growing awareness of the segmental concrete products industry.
