Meet the New MIA Executive Director

The Masonry Institute of America has appointed Andrew Rice as its next Executive Director. His first day on the job was June 1, 2021. Andrew will succeed John Chrysler, who is retiring at the end of December after more than three decades leading the organization.

Prior to joining the MIA, Andrew managed engineering programs for 20 years as a Principal Engineer at the Walt Disney Company in the theme Park Division.

He is currently immersing himself to become familiar with all things MIA including their library of publications and international codes for building systems, masonry standards & practices, and is working to obtain the structural masonry special inspection certification.

We've told Andrew he has big shoes to fill but we look forward to working with him and continuing the long-standing collaboration between MIA and MCAC. We also hope to meet him at the MCAC November meeting in Scottsdale, AZ. In the meantime, welcome Andrew!

Keeping Cool When Working in the Heat: 29 "Cool" Tools

California's heat illness prevention standard requires employers to provide water, rest, shade and training and to closely observe and acclimatize outdoor workers new to working in the heat. Additional high heat requirements apply when temperatures reach 95 degrees [reference subsection (e) of the standard for high heat procedures].

Equipment World has a list of cool tools to help beat the heat on the job site. The list includes links to the items along with pricing, updated as of June 2021.

Map PAGA Cases by County

The California Business and Industrial Alliance (CABIA) has added another instrument to the fight against PAGA -- a map depicting PAGA cases county-by-county across California. Some counties are harder hit due to business concentration but the map visualizes the extent of PAGA's reach. Tip: Roll your cursor over the map to see the count for each county.

MCAC joined the California Business and Industrial Alliance (CABIA) and their fight against the Private Attorneys General Act (PAGA) in 2020. We renewed our support for 2021 because we continue to hear stories of MCAC members dealing with this malicious intrusion to their businesses.
